Freshmen,	4
Not Classed,	13
Preparatory Department,	34
Total,	100

ADMISSION.

Candidates for admission to the Freshman Class, must be well acquainted with Arithmetic, English Grammar and Geography; with the Grammars of the Latin and Greek Languages; and must be able to translate, readily, Cæsar, Virgil, Sallust, Cicero's select Orations, and Jacob's or Anthon's Greek Reader. As introductory to these, the careful study of Arnold's First and Second Latin Book, and Arnold's First Greek Book, is strongly recommended. Andrews and Stoddard's Latin, and Sophocles' Greek Grammars, are preferred, and are used by the College Classes. When the Text Books named have not been read, others must have been studied which shall be deemed by the Faculty equivalent. Candidates for an advanced standing must be well versed in the preceding studies of the Class which they propose to enter.

Testimonials of good moral character are, in all cases, required; and those who come from other Colleges must produce certificates of dismissal, in good standing. Students are not to be admitted to the regular College Classes, at an earlier age than fourteen years, except in special cases which are to be determined by the Faculty.

The whole course of studies, for the Degree of Bachelor of Arts, occupies four years. Each year is divided into two Sessions; a Winter, and a Summer Session; the first, of about six months; the second, of about three months.

The following Schedule gives a general view of the studies pursued in each Session.

COURSE OF INSTRUCTION.

FRESHMAN CLASS.

- FIRST. { Selections from Ovid—Livy (Lincoln's.)
Xenophon's Anabasis.
Arnold's Latin and Greek Prose Composition, with written Translations into English.
Algebra, commenced—Davies' First Lessons.
- SECOND. { Livy continued.
Xenophon's Cyropædia, or Herodotus.
Latin and Greek Prose Composition, continued.
Prosody, with written Translations.
Algebra continued; Ancient Geography.

SOPHOMORE CLASS.

- FIRST. { Cicero de Amicitia and de Senectute; Horace, Satires.
Xenophon's Memorabilia; Greek and Roman Antiquities.
Exercises in Latin and Greek Prose Composition.
Geometry, Davies' Legendre; Bourdon's Algebra.
- SECOND. { Horace continued, Odes; Homer's Iliad.
Algebra continued; Plain and Spherical Trigonometry.
Ancient History, Putz.

JUNIOR CLASS.

- FIRST. { Horace, Epistles; Cicero de Oratore.
Euripides' Alcestis; Æschines.
Application of Algebra to Geometry, and Conic Sections; Mensuration of Heights and Distances, Navigation, Surveying, Leveling, and Nautical Astronomy, (Far-rar's Camb. Course.)
Logic; Rhetoric, Blair or Whately.
- SECOND. { Tacitus; Demosthenes de Corona.

Natural Theology; Evidences of Christianity.
The French Language.

SENIOR CLASS.

- FIRST. { Intellectual Philosophy.
Moral Philosophy; Political Economy,
Wayland.
Cicero de Officiis; Sophocles or Æschylus.
Olmsted's Pneumatics, Acoustics, Magnetism, Electricity, and Optics; Herschel's or Olmsted's Astronomy; Calculus.
- SECOND. { Political Economy completed.
Chemistry and Geology.
Story on the Constitution.
Guizot's History of Civilization.

RHETORICAL EXERCISES.

All the Classes have exercises in Declamation and Composition alternately every week. Oration is written, and delivered before the College, once in three months, by the Junior and Senior Classes. There is also a Public Exhibition by the Senior Class during the winter Session.

The Students are permitted, on suitable occasions, under the direction of the Faculty, to attend the Debates in Congress, and to hear the arguments before the Supreme Court of the United States.

LECTURES.

In addition to recitations in the books above specified, the the Classes receive Lectures and other occasional instruction, from the Professors of the several Departments. The Senior and Junior Classes attend a course of Experimental Lectures upon Chemistry and its kindred subjects; and also, upon Anatomy, Physiology, and Dietetics.

All the Students have the opportunity of attending the valuable Lectures at the Smithsonian Institution. This is considered a great advantage, as these Lectures embrace a very wide range of subjects, and are from persons of the highest standing in the literary and scientific world.

EXPENSES.

FOR THE WINTER SESSION.

Tuition,	$26.00
Use of Library, room, furniture, bed, &c.,	17.00
Table and servants, per week,	2.25

FOR THE SUMMER SESSION.

Tuition,	$14.00
Use of Library, room, furniture, bed, &c.,	9.00
Table and servants, per week,	2.25

To those Students who do not board in College, the charge for Tuition is the same ; and for the use of library, room, furniture, and servants, $12 for the Winter Session, and $8 for the Summer Session.

Students on entering the College, pay a Matriculation fee of $10, and there is a small charge for average damages, each Session.

Fuel and lights are furnished at cost, and washing, at $37\frac{1}{2}$ cents per dozen.

A less expensive table is provided for those who, for the sake of economy, may choose to dispense with tea and coffee and a few other articles. The board at this table is charged at $1 50 per week, thus reducing the expenses about $30 per annum.

The necessary College expenses of a boarding Student, exclusive of books and stationery, will not exceed, at the higher price of board, $180 ; and at the lower price of board, $150, per annum.

All College bills are payable three months in advance. No abatement is made in the charge for board, on account of an absence of less than a month, except in cases of protracted illness.

GRATUITOUS INSTRUCTION.

Much pains has been taken to limit the expenses of the College, so as to place its means of education within the reach of the greatest number possible. The charges, it will be seen, are moderate, compared with those of other institutions of like grade. It was a prominent object with its founders, and one which has been steadily kept in view, to afford aid and encouragement to young men who were preparing for the Christian ministry. To such, when their circumstances require it, the tuition is gratuitous, and in some instances no charge is made except for board, which may be had, at one table, for $1 50 per week. Such additional assistance, as is compatible with the other duties of the College, will be afforded them in the direction of their studies, and by imparting Biblical instruction.

SESSIONS—VACATIONS—COMMENCEMENT.

There are two Sessions in the College year; the first, commencing on the third Thursday in September, and ending on the third Wednesday in March; the second commencing on the third Thursday in April, and ending on the third Wednesday in July—when the Annual Commencement, for conferring Degrees, is held.

There are two Vacations; one of about four weeks, at the close of the first or Winter Session; the other of eight or nine weeks after Commencement.

Students may enter the College at any time—the beginning of the year, or the opening of a Session, is preferable.

GENERAL INFORMATION.

The College is delightfully situated on an eminence which overlooks the City of Washington, the Capitol, and other Public Buildings; and commands a fine view of the Potomac, with the surrounding country for many miles in extent. For beauty and healthfulness of position, it is unsurpassed, and its local advantages are such as are enjoyed by no other Institution in the country.

Its vicinity to the National Metropolis, affords to young men the opportunity of observing distinguished Public characters; of becoming acquainted with the nature and operations of our Government; and of witnessing the highest exhibitions of talent in the halls of Congress and in the Supreme Court of the United States. This is deemed of great importance, especially for those who are destined for public life, and its practical effects are seen in the success of many who have gone out from the College, and are now filling distinguished stations of honor and usefulness in society.

The City of Washington is already becoming a place of great attractions for persons engaged in scientific and literary pursuits. The National Observatory lately established by Congress, is in full and successful operation. It is furnished with instruments of great value and perfection, which, under able management, are employed in making important Astronomical and other observations. The "Smithsonian Institution," with its large fund of some six or seven hundred thousand dollars, is actively engaged in carrying out the great object for which it was founded—"the increase of knowledge, and its diffusion among men." Its ample and beautiful buildings are rapidly approaching their completion, and several of its Departments are already in successful operation.

The plan adopted by the Regents is a large and liberal one, embracing an extensive Library; valuable collections in the Arts and Sciences, and in Natural History; original investigations and experiments conducted with reference to important scientific and practical subjects; and Public Lectures given by gentlemen of the highest distinction in the several Departments of science and learning. Free access to this and other Institutions of like character will afford very great opportunities for improvement, especially in those branches which are not embraced in the ordinary course of a public education, and must present a strong additional inducement to young men, for entering a College where such advantages can be enjoyed.
